Dear Sir:

I found a strip of aluminum foil, enclosed, while walking in a field. There has been many strips of this material found over a large area.

I would like to know what
this material is, if you know what it is would you please write to me and tell me what it is?

Yours truly,

Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

The Air Force wishes to thank you for your recent report of a material found in a field near Richey, Montana, which appeared as strips of aluminum. The sample of the material which you forwarded with your report has been analyzed and determined to be chaff.

Chaff is a material which is dropped from aircraft in an effort to make radar detection difficult. In this instance the chaff was dropped by our planes during a practice mission.

Sincerely

LAWRENCE J. TACKER
