Looking Forward to 100 Years of Innovation

As we approach the 100th Anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's historic Spirit of St. Louis transatlantic flight from New York to Paris, The Lindbergh Foundation is focused on the biggest challenge of our time – Decarbonizing Aviation.

Core Values

At the Lindbergh Foundation, diversity of thought, opinion and action is at the core of who we are. Our commitment to these values is unwavering – across all of our work around the world. We know that having varied perspectives helps generate the innovative ideas that will solve the complex problems of a changing – and increasingly interdependent world.

The Lindbergh Foundation acknowledges and denounces the controversial pre-World War II statements of Charles A. Lindbergh. The Foundation does not support anti-Semitism, bigotry or hatred in any manner.

The Lindbergh Foundation is dedicated to balancing civilization's needs and protecting our natural environment. We seek to inspire and accelerate innovators creating solutions to environmental problems.

Note: John L. Petersen was the Chairman of the Arlington Institute at the time and is who Fitts claims told her she could see alien bodies. Curiously, Petersen has also served as the Chairman of the Lindbergh Foundation, a non-profit working to decarbonize aviation and promote new technologies in aerospace. The Lindbergh Foundation was founded by Neil Armstrong and Gen. James Doolittle. (Doolittle is linked to the UAP subject by his investigation of "ghost rockets" in Sweden in the 1940s).
