

Vancouver Oval

Vancouver, B.C., July 7, 1957

NICAP

H. M. Brown, 4423 William Street, North Burnaby, Vancouver, British Columbia

On a clear Sunday night (July 7) while walking along the street at almost midnight H. M. Brown of Vancouver saw a bluish metallic oval object in the sky which he judged to be some 40 feet long and 15 feet wide and perhaps 3000 feet high, although he is not sure. It remained motionless at least five minutes and then suddenly started eastward and in starting up seemed to show a very dark object like a person sitting on a high stool toward the front. Travelling a level course the object went due east, turned a sharp corner at full speed, went due south, turned sharply and headed due west, and then turned north and stopped finally at almost the point where it started, having made a perfect square. After becoming brighter again it faced southeast and at high speed was gone in a minute
