Residents of Hope are talking flying saucers today after a mysterious moving light "that hummed" was seen in the cloudy sky.

Wick Burnett, machine shop operator, told the Vancouver Sun the mysterious illuminated object was "quite a size", moved up and down the sky and appeared at the same time to revolve.

The object was clearly visible for about 10 minutes around 11 pm Sunday. (This was on Sept. 21st - Editor.)

Mr. Burnett said the light finally disappeared. He said he could not state positively that there was a sound accompanying the light but others told him they heard a distinct hum.

"It was definitely not an aircraft." Said Mr. Burnett.
