

Mammoth Dinner Plates

Vancouver, B.C. - December, 1959

Phenomenon, June 1968

Vancouver, B.C. Incidentally, I too, have sighted Flying Saucers - though they looked more like mammoth-sized dinner plates to me - each appeared to be at least half the size of the dome on the Chalmers Church, 12th Ave. There were two in the UBC area.

The time was around 4:00 p.m. in December 1959. The day had been bright with sunshine but it was now immediately before dusk. The skies were clear and there was a touch of frost in the air.

These Saucers were silvertoned. They appeared to be having the gayest time flitting up and down and over and under so speedily and yet in such close proximity to one another as if playing Tag.

Once one turned fully around and in doing so it looked like a huge Jelly Fish - so flexible in undulating movement - the reflection of the light and darker skies on presumably its metallic surface causing this effect. And at one point in its turning it wasn't visible for an instant - where it was "thinner-through" like a saucer.

Finally and after about five minutes they took off at their characteristic terrific speed in a south-easterly direction and disappeared in a dark cloud. Lastly, 'tis true, seeing is believing. But once one has seen, nothing on earth will change one's mind . . . and it is a privilege and most gratifying experience to have sighted such phenomenal objects as Flying Saucers.

Source: <https://ufobc.ca/Reports/MusgraveFiles/>