

Object Changing Colours Over Yarrow

Yarrow, BC - December 1967

APRO Files

I have observed an unusual aerial phenomenon. It occurred one clear night in the last week of December. It was about 6:30. I was star gazing at the time when all of a sudden I saw an object close to the northern horizon. It was moving at tremendous speed for it covered the whole sky in approximately 15 to 20 seconds. It was traveling from north to south and was changing colours from red to blue to yellow and it kept repeating this cycle. It was obviously out of the earth's atmosphere for there was no tail or glow. I am certain it was not a plane or satellite because I know what a satellite are[or?] aircraft lights look like; I have to for I am a valid holder of a Private Pilots Licence. I have never before now reported this incident. I belong to no other organization and I am not a ham operator or any of the like.
